The Manly Man's Wardrobe

Long ago lived a seaman named Captain Bravo. He was a manly man's man who showed no fear in facing his enemies. One day, while sailing the seven seas, a look-out spotted a pirate ship and the crew became frantic. Captain Bravo bellowed, "Bring me my red shirt!" The First Mate quickly retrieved the captain's red shirt and while wearing the bright frock he led his mates into battle and defeated the pirates. Later on, the look-out again spotted not one, but two pirate ships. The captain again howled for his red shirt and once again vanquished the pirates.

That evening, the men sat on deck recounting the day's triumphs. One of them asked the captain, "Sir, why did you call for your red shirt before battle?" The captain replied, "If I am wounded in the attack, the shirt will not show my blood and thus, you men will continue to resist unafraid." The men sat in silence and marveled at the courage of such a manly man's man.

As dawn came the next morning, the look-out spotted not one, not two, but TEN pirate ships approaching. The rank and file all stared in worshipful silence at the captain and waited for his usual reply. Captain Bravo gazed with steely eyes upon the vast armada arrayed against his mighty sailing ship and without fear, turned and calmly shouted, "Get me my brown pants!"

Commander's Report

Happy New Year -

Working with Tom Cawcutt and helping where I can in setting his agenda for next year, I recently realized this would be my last article in the Channel Chatter as an officer. I started wondering, what should be my last words, updates, etc. I guess my thoughts roam to the incoming bridge -be as active as you can and get others involved.

The General Boating classes start January 3rd and this is a great way to give to the community and get to know incoming members. So many of our new members this past year have been fun to get to know and energize one to keep spreading the word about safe boating practices. Set a goal and try to take at least one class in the next year or two or participate in an activity which you haven't been able to participate in previously.

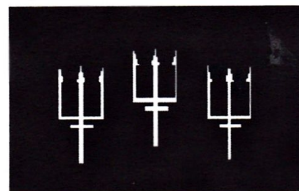

Possibly sit in and review a class you've already taken. New instructors share their knowledge on a unit and keep it interesting. Steve always appreciates members willing to correct homework, give assistance or help on testing night. Give him a call. I'm sure you won't be turned down.

February the squadron will have its boat show booth, April is the Fitting Out Party, May through August -safe boating events, co-op charting -predicted log, etc. Tom, Charlie and Sue would appreciate your volunteer efforts. Events go smoother when there are many pitching in who are willing to give assistance.

For myself, all I can say is one big thank you. Thank you for being there, giving your support, and volunteering. This past year has been one which made me realize I am thankful for what I have. The Duluth Power Squadron could not have been so successful without all your support. I will always appreciate it and will continue to keep you in my thoughts and prayers.

Administrative Officer's Report

I hope each and every one of you has had a wonderful holiday season. I know Mary and I did. This years "Old Fashion" Christmas Party was a huge success. The food was great, the students from Denfeld High School sang to a standing ovation, and our own Tom Cawcutt did an outstanding performance on the electric piano. We all wanted Tom to keep playing and singing, but you know he's a little shy. Now, if Santa would only have refinished that pile of teak which is sitting in my garage.

Our joint Weather Course with the Coast Guard Auxiliary is in full swing with a good turn out of students. In the first three weeks Dave Anderson (KBJR weather) our lead instructor, told us what we have studied so far, took him two years to learn in meteorology school. As I look back, Piloting was a piece of cake.

Now that the holidays are over and our lives get back to normal, mark your calendars and make an extra effort to attend some of the Squadron's wintertime events. On January 15th our general membership meeting will be held. February 12th is our Annual meeting and March 3rd is the Change of Watch. Help us send Commander Gina to that special place for all Past Commanders and welcome our year 2001, Commander Tom Cawcutt Sr.

Keep warm.

—Lt/C Charles Grubb, P

We were privileged to hear three entertainment groups during this year's Christmas Party. The Strollers took requests during our social hour. Immediately after dinner, the Denfeld High School group, Steppin' Up, sang several selections of Christmas Carols followed by their Americana Dance Show. (All photos on this page are of members watching Steppin' Up.) Finally, our own Tom Cawcutt entertained the group with both carols and original pieces which he played on his Yamaha Clavinova keyboard.

Calabash What is it?

by Scoop (Jan) Nelson

The Calabash Award is bestowed upon some poor unsuspecting member every year at the Change of Watch. This award is given to the member who has had the funniest/craziest blooper over the past year. Members try to hide their bloopers, but the secrets usually are found out. Do you know where the word "calabash" came from or how the award started? Read on!

For the past couple of months, I've been talking to Power Squadron members asking who would know the origin of the word "calabash" and how it became the name of our annual award. I found many members who did not know but they'd refer me to someone they thought might know. Finally, someone suggested that I call long-time Power Squadron members, Jack and Ginny Soetebier. I caught Ginny Soetebier at home that day. As Ginny remembered, the award started sometime in the 1940s. The Duluth Power Squadron was much smaller then and, of course, only men were allowed as members in the organization at that time. After Power Squadron classes, a group would gather for cocktails in a bar that is located where the current Shish-ka-bar is. This group decided that there should be a fun award given annually for the member who had the biggest "woops" of the season. She thought the word "Calabash" represented the physical award, which you may have noticed is a sort of toasting cup (see definition #4 below: gourd, used as a container). Did you know that the Calabash cup is kept/carried in a fur-lined chamber pot? Ginny said this container was created by furrier, Bill Wegner, and that was awarded along with the Calabash cup the year that O.A. Burghdorf (nickname: Burgie, a former Sears manager) won the Calabash award.

Calabash

Mrs. Calabash where are you?

Jimmy Durante made this mysterious women's name his signature sign-off during the 1940s. But did she really exist?

By Ted Tyson of Scarborough, Ontario

"GOOD NIGHT, Mrs. Calabash--wherever you are!"

For years, Jimmy Durante ended his radio and television shows with that unusual sign-off. Most people thought the mysterious Mrs. Calabash must have been some fictional character that Durante dreamed up just to tease his audiences. But longtime residents of Calabash, North Carolina believe otherwise. The folks in this town will tell you she was a real person with a real name--and a fascinating story to boot. They claim that Mrs. Calabash was really a local woman named Lucille "Lucy" Coleman.

In 1940, Lucy was 28 years old and running a restaurant in Calabash, then a tiny seaside community bordering South Carolina. Durante and his touring entertainment troupe are said to have stopped in for supper one night. It may have been the genuine homespun friendliness of the young restaurant owner that prompted the gregarious Jimmy Durante to beckon Lucy over to his table for some short chitchat. "I'm going to make you famous," vowed Durante, thinking she recognized his well-known face. (In fact, at that moment, she didn't even know who he was!) Lucy's daughter, Clarice Holden, says she will never forget what happened next.

SECRET SIGN OFF "As Mr. Durante and his group were walking out the door after their meal," Clarice recalls, "he turned to my mom and said, 'Good night Mrs. Calabash.'" It wasn't long afterward that this popular entertainer began signing off his radio shows with a similar message. For years, audiences enjoyed this rather light-hearted farewell mystery. By the time of Durante's death in 1980, it had become one of his trademarks, almost as recognizable as his big "schnozzola". But while that sign-off may have remained a mystery to most folks, Calabash residents believe it was Durante's way of saying to Mrs. Coleman, "Hi, Lucy--I remember you, if you're still out there now."

Lucy Coleman passed away in 1989, nearly 50 years after her meeting with Jimmy Durante. Calabash residents note that Lucy recognized the significance of Durante's little secret message but preferred to stay out of the lime-light. She had no desire to claim credit as the real "Mrs. Calabash." "Mom was a very private person," recalls Clarice, "She didn't speak much about her 'Mrs. Calabash' entity, and declined all interviews and all invitations to appear on television."

Apparently, Durante's popularity was so great that he could immortalize a prim Southern restaurant keeper. But neither he nor anyone else could get her to talk.

"Superior Adventure"

You may have noticed in the last couple of issues a flyer titled "Superior Adventure", with hotel, marina, and campground information on it. If you don't already know, the Duluth Power Squadron is hosting the D/10 Summer Rendezvous the weekend of July 20 -22, 2001 in beautiful Bayfield, WI.

Plan on joining the Duluth Squadron in hosting a wonderful event in Bayfield. If you attended the 1998 rendezvous, you will remember the great time we had. We plan on having MORE fun this time.

Some of the activities this time will be: cruise on the Island Princess to Stockton Island, cardboard boat race, Kid's crew, dinner cooked by the Bayfield Volunteer Fire Dept. and our own famous corn, and many other events throughout this fun-filled weekend.

Plan your vacation around the weekend of July 20 - 22 in Bayfield. The flyer in this publication is providing you with information on accommodations in and around Bayfield. Most places have blocks of rooms set aside for the Power Squadron Members, so when making reservations, make sure you state that you are a Power Squadron Member. Remember there is limited availability in the area during the summer. Make your plans now, call, and make your reservation early.

If you are coming by boat, look at the flyer for marina information or call our Fleet Captain Dean Baltes to arrange for space at the City Dock. In the next few months the registration and shirt order form will be sent out and published in future issues.
